BEGINS ITS FIGHT TO SAVE CLAUDE

did I don't recollect anything about it."

Mr. Poage, after a few other questions, asked:

"How far were you from Floyd Allen when he jumped up and said 'Gentlemen, I ain't going'?"

"Oh, I reckon about eight or ten feet."

"You knew what he meant when he said that, didn't you?"

Byrd looked rather reproachfully at Mr. Poage, paused, rolled his black slouch hat around in his hands, then replied warily: "Well, now, that's a pretty hard question for a fellow to answer. I can't exactly tell."

"Well did you know what it meant?" persisted Mr. Poage.

"Oh, I thought it likely meant that something might happen."

"Well, where did the first shots come from?" asked Mr. Poage.

"Ignorant About First Shot."

Turning his head squarely to the judge, Byrd replied emphatically:

"Gentlemen, if I had to die I could not tell you where the first shots came from."

"Did you have any conversations with any of the Allens the Thursday morning just before the shooting?"

"No, sir; if I did, I don't recollect any."

"Then why did you go down to the Blankenship stable right after the shooting where the Allens congregated?"

"Well, I walked around a place after I got out of the courthouse. I just stepped down there like a man would go around town."

"What did you whisper into Floyd Allen's ear when you knelt down by him at the stable?"

"Now that was like this: Floyd looked up as if he was dying, and he sort of motioned me with his hand. So I stooped down by him and he said, 'Some one tell my poor old wife that I'm pretty high all gone. Treat her right after I'm gone, and tell her not to grieve.'"

"What did you say to him?"

"I said something, I forget exactly what, but I guess I just said 'well.'"

Turning to another tack, Mr. Poage asked: "You said a moment ago that you are poor. Then where did you get that $50 that was found on you when you were arrested?"

"Why, I got it last winter a year ago for hauling some lumber to Mount Airy for a man. Then I sold some live stock during the fall."

"Where is that money now?"

"Sharp Rebuke to Lawyers."

Judge N. H. Harrison, at the defense's table, exclaimed: "I don't know as that's any of your business."

Before Attorney Poage could reply to Judge Harrison, Judge Staples rapped the attorneys to order and delivered the sharpest rebuke of the many he has been obliged to dispense to the opposing counsel since the trial began.

"Listen, gentlemen, if I am obliged to call your attention to this matter again, I will certainly impose a fine. This unnecessary wrangling among counsel must cease. If you have objections to make, make them to the court and I will pass upon them."

Meekly the attorneys bowed their heads in acknowledgment of the warning, and for the rest of the session there was peace, perfect peace, between the lawyers.

Then Byrd took it upon himself to supplement his last answer a little later by saying: "I tell you all, I didn't get any of that money from the Allens."

When court opened this morning the Commonwealth's recalled Detective H. H. Lucas to the witness stand. He said he had found $34.64 in Claude's clothes when he arrested him two weeks after the shooting. Lucas also identified a photograph of the Carroll county courthouse which was put in evidence.

The Commonwealth then rested its case-in-chief, and the attorneys for the defense retired for over an hour to confer on a plan of campaign against the Commonwealth's admittedly powerful compilation of evidence.

First Witness for Defense.

Harry Wilkerson, a mere lad, was the first witness for the defense. He said that he and Wesley Edwards had come into Cochrane's restaurant, where he was employed, and had eaten there. He said that he had left his overcoat when they left hurriedly as the courthouse bell rang, but Wilkerson said that he had often let his coat hang up in the restaurant while he went about Hillsville.

A number of other unimportant witnesses were heard this morning, and over an hour was consumed by Attorney ney C. F. Cooke, for the defense, reading the testimony taken in Floyd Allen's trial of six witnesses whom the defense had not thought worth while bringing back to this trial.

Walter D. Tipton, associated with Judge D. W. Bolen as counsel for Floyd Allen in the Hillsville trial, was the most important witness of the morning.

His testimony, however, proved more profitable to the State's case than to the defendant's.

On cross-examination Mr. Tipton said he had seen Claude Allen standing on the bench in the northeast corner of the courtroom with his pistol extended just after the first shot had been fired.

Mr. Tipton would not be positive whether or not Sidney Allen was standing by Claude, nor would he be certain as to whether Sidney had fired the first shot.

The witness also described Floyd Allen's actions when Sheriff Webb advanced to take him in charge. Floyd, he testified, arose and fumbled at his sweater, seeming to be reaching for something inside his coat.

Mr. Tipton did not see Floyd Allen shoot.

Just as in Floyd Allen's trial, Attorney Tipton's testimony was apparently of more benefit to the Commonwealth than to the defendant, although the defense put him on the stand both times.

Attorney H. C. Gilmer, the first witness this afternoon and just before Byrd Marion, told of having seen Sidney Allen shooting toward the courthouse from the yard after the firing in the building had ceased. The defense put Gilmer on the stand in an effort to show that John Dalton's testimony was unreliable in one or more particulars, thereby seeking to impeach Dalton's entire testimony, which had been next to Judge Bolen's the most damaging to Claude Allen. Dalton had told of having seen Wesley Edwards pass cartridges around to others of the now indicted Allen clansmen just before the shooting in the courthouse.

Any charity which is given for the benefit of Fine Camp Tuberculosis Hospital is sure to enlist the patronage of Richmond people, and the present production will probably prove no exception to the general rule.

In order to ensure a performance which will be really satisfying to the patrons of the charity, the circus committee has engaged a company of professional tumblers and acrobats, not surpassed by any in their line.

Outside and inside of the tent will be candy, cigarette and flower booths. Also there will be a tent to house the one freak of the circus. Can't mention names. Pay your nickel piece and take a shank at the freak for yourself. You'll have three opportunities to see the show, to-night, to-morrow afternoon and to-morrow night.

The circus tent is pitched on a vacant lot on the 1699 block of Monument Avenue.

SOCIETY CIRCUS TO-DAY

To-Night's the Night for "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Under a big tent out on Monument Avenue last night the 100 local amateurs who make up the acts of the big society circus, rehearsed their stunts for the education of a small but appreciative audience.

From a glimpse of the dress rehearsal it is not a long shot to guess that the initial performance to-night will be a great success. The animals alone might make it that, but the audience is certain to contribute its might to the howl.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27.—George L. Wheeler, a former well-known detective, of New York, and later in Washington, died yesterday at his home in Stafford county, near this city. He had been in ill health for some years and his death was not unexpected. He developed tuberculosis while in the detective service and retired on a pension in 1895, since which time he has been living a quiet life on his farm. He is survived by his widow and one son. The body was brought here to-day and taken to Washington for interment.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid, an irritating, inflammatory accumulation, which gets into the circulation because of weak kidneys, constipation, indigestion, and other physical irregularities which are usually considered of no importance. Nothing applied externally can ever reach the seat of this trouble; the most such treatment can do is soothe the pains temporarily; while potash and other mineral medicines really add to the acidity of the blood, and this fluid therefore continually grows more acid and vitiated. Then instead of nourishing the different muscles and joints, keeping them in a normally supple and elastic condition, it gradually hardens and stiffens them by drying up the natural oils and fluids. Rheumatism can never be cured until the blood is purified. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and driving the cause from the system. It strengthens and invigorates the blood so that instead of a sour, weak stream, depositing acid and painful corrosive matter in the muscles, joints and bones, it nourishes the entire body with pure, rich blood and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. contains no potash, alkali or other harmful mineral, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks of great purifying and tonic properties. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.
